

Andrew Dyer, Australian Representative, BrightSource Energy

Andrew Dyer is the BrightSource Energy representative in Australia, responsible for helping BrightSource develop this key and expanding market.

Andrew recently completed his term as the Victoria, Australia's Commissioner to the Americas, based in San Francisco, where he was heavily involved in bilateral trade and investment activity between the Americas and Australia.

Prior to his Commissioner role, Andrew was Chief Operating Officer of SMS Management & Technology, Australia's largest consulting company. He has significant utility experience, having worked as the former head of operations for Indus International in San Francisco, a software provider to the nuclear and fossil generation industry. He also worked in customer service for FPL Group in Florida, and lead IBM Australia's utilities practice in Melbourne.

Andrew consulted to a number of utility organisations in both the U.S. and Asia for McKinsey & Co. and held board positions at Australian-based utilities.

He holds a Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering with first class honours from Monash University, Australia and an MBA from Georgetown University.

Andrew is a Director of the Transport Accident Commission, Chairman of ITSS and a Director of Grampians Tourism.