

Oliver Richards, Director - Carbon Markets (Emissions Trading Division), Department of Climate Change, Australian Government

Oliver Richards is the Director of the Carbon Markets Section within the Emissions Trading Division in the Department of Climate Change in the Australian Government. The emissions trading division has responsibility for advising Government on the design and implementation of Australia's Carbon Pollution Reduction Scheme.

Oliver has worked on Carbon Market issues since 2007. Prior to this Oliver worked on an array of financial and macro-economic issues in the Department of Treasury. These included the review of the Commonwealth Government Securities (CGS) market, the establishment of the Commonwealth Government Future Fund and in the monetary policy section. He holds a Bachelor of Accounting and Finance with Honours from the University of Western Australia, a Bachelor of Economics with Honours and a Bachelor of Asian Studies from the Australian National University. Oliver is currently completing a PHD in Economics at the Australian National University.